MISSION STATEMENT

“Our mission is to serve God in fulfilling Christ's Great Commission by raising up and equipping disciples out of the ranks of those afflicted by substance abuse and its related emotional disorders.”

PROGRAM PHILOSOPHY

It is the vision of the founders of His House Recovery Residence, Inc. (HHRR) to provide quality, effective, residential substance abuse treatment, at an affordable cost to the Client, while maintaining integrity with other treatment professionals and the criminal justice system.

INTRODUCTION

The founders of HHRR believe that in order for the treatment of addiction to be effective it must be holistic. In addition to the treatment of the primary illness of chemical dependency or substance abuse it must also address the psychological and social behaviors, which precipitate substance abuse and are exacerbated by prolonged, chronic use. The overt manifestation of addiction is characterized not only by compulsive use of mind altering and/or mood changing chemicals, but is also associated with other self destructive intra -personal and interpersonal patterns of behavior. Long-term recovery is dependent upon changing these self-destructive behaviors.

Addiction is progressive. Left untreated, and addict's physical and psychological dependence upon their drug of choice continues to escalate. The negative impact upon an individual's physical and mental health increases as substance abuse escalates. The potential outcomes of untreated addiction are incarceration, impairment of physical and/or mental health and in extreme cases, death.

Addiction is chronic in nature. The best outcome a Client may hope for is remission. Attempts to return to a "controlled" or "recreational" use of any mind altering and/or mood changing substances will reactivate the compulsion to use and bring about a return to behavior patterns that existed prior to treatment. The onset of symptoms returns more rapidly than when the behavior was first acquired. The belief in total abstinence from any mind altering or mood changing substance is the foundation of the HHRR philosophy.

HHRR holds the belief that addiction is treatable providing the addict is willing to work a daily recovery program. It is further believed that treatment of an addict's family and significant others enhance the probability of long-term recovery and reintegration into the family structure and community.

Left untreated, addiction is believed to be a terminal illness. Death may occur from primary physiological symptoms of alcohol or drug use (e.g., cirrhosis of the liver) or the secondary effects (e.g., cardiovascular disease) Death may also be the result of alcohol and drug related accidents or suicides.

Additionally, there are affective implications in long term, untreated addiction. Feelings of guilt, shame, and unworthiness lead to social isolation and failure of interpersonal relationships.

Addiction impairs the ability of the Client to delay the need for gratification and to interact appropriately with others. Decisions are made based on the need for immediate gratification. These decisions are usually self-serving and self-centered, indicating a lack of or an arrested spiritual development.

PRINCIPLES OF TREATMENT

HRRR adheres to the following beliefs about the treatment that it provides to clients:

1. Effective treatment of addiction requires a multidisciplinary approach. Skilled professionals trained in the psychological, social and spiritual aspects of recovery work together in planning each phase of a Client's treatment. These include, but are not limited to: the Executive Director, Counselors and Ancillary staff. Consultation with outside medical and mental health professionals is sought when requested by the Client or determined to be necessary by the treatment team.
2. HRRR encourages the Client's family and significant others to become involved in the treatment process. This involvement takes the form of referral to family support groups and family/marital therapy as indicated. The primary goal of outpatient and recovery residence treatment is to reintegrate the Client into his/her family and community systems as soon as possible.
3. The structured and supportive environment provided by HRRR makes it possible for clients to address the emotional changes brought about by long-term addiction. Shame, guilt, low self esteem, fear and anger are common psychological themes which clients are able to explore. Special issues of men and women are addressed in gender specific groups.
4. HRRR believes that an essential component of a Client's treatment program is the development of a spiritual life including an active relationship with God through Jesus Christ. Regular attendance of a 12-step program is required and participation at God's Rolling Thunder Church is mandatory. On rare occasions attendance at the Client's home church will be allowed when approved by the Director and accompanied by family.
5. HRRR believes that it has an obligation to clearly define its treatment goals to both the Client community and the referral community at large. These goals are:
 - a. The Client will abstain from all mind altering and/or mood changing chemicals;
 - b. The Client will verbalize an understanding of the disease concept of addiction;
 - c. The Client will identify and express feelings in an appropriate, healthy manner;
 - d. The Client will become involved and participate in a 12-Step fellowship regularly. The Client will get and use a sponsor regularly;
 - e. The Client will perform daily chores, daily meal preparation, weekly food purchases and other living skills as assigned;
 - f. The Client will obtain employment and assume financial responsibility for all treatment fees. Disabled clients may substitute volunteer work for employment;
 - g. The Client will participate in leisure activities and therapeutic leaves, using these leaves to repair damaged family and significant other relationships.

GENERAL INFORMATION

His House is a supportive, structured living environment for addicts who are new in their recovery. Clients are subject to nightly curfews, random urine screens, and are required to attend Alcoholics Anonymous or Narcotics Anonymous meetings on a regular basis, in addition to weekly groups at His House. Clients are required to work, unless there is a physical or mental disability, which prevents them from doing so.

It is strongly recommended, especially in parole and probation cases, that a Client remains for completion of the entire program, which is approximately eighteen months. The actual length of time for completion of the program is determined by the Clients' participation and progress in the program, not a predetermined amount of days in the program.

We strongly believe that the Criminal Justice System is overrun with cases that are directly related to an individual's addiction problem. We have found that the treatment provided in the prison system isn't enough. While providing education to the addict, they do not afford the person the opportunity to practice the necessary life skills they have learned. At His House, the Client is allowed to implement the skills in which the recovery lifestyle requires, while still under structure and supervision. We feel that our program is an effective alternative sentencing strategy to truly rehabilitate addicts whose disease has led them into legal problems.

The formation of the His House program is a culmination of ideas and experiences of several people actively participating in 12-Step programs of recovery. His House staff has found that the ideas and theories taught in the 12-Step fellowships implemented in a structured living environment greatly enhance the chances of recovery.

His House recognizes that the disease of addiction affects the addict physically, mentally, emotionally, and spiritually, and that the success of any program of recovery lies in daily commitment to a 12-step program. His House believes that regular attendance and application of the principles of these programs are the foundations for that success.

The His House staff is made up of people who are professional treatment providers and/or recovering addicts, themselves. We are available to clients to help in teaching the twelve steps and the practical application of these principles in daily living.

The programs of A.A. and N.A. teach us that there will come a time when nothing will stand between the addict and a drink or a drug but his relationship with his Higher Power. We, therefore, encourage spiritual growth.

ADMISSION OF Clients

His House staff will conduct a personal screening interview with all prospective Clients and appropriateness for admission will be determined on an individual basis. Only those who are willing to seek recovery shall be admitted. Upon approval for admission, Clients are requested to have the following recent treatment records forwarded to His House, if available: diagnostic summary (with Multi-Axial Assessment), social history, treatment plan, and aftercare plan and medication list, if applicable. State law requires a current (within the previous 6 months) PPD and RPR on the day of admission; Clients will not be admitted without these vital medical records. On the day of admission to His House, staff will conduct an entry interview with each Client to include a personal data history, fee contract agreement, rules and regulations agreement, other applicable paperwork and unit placement.

COMMUNITY LIVING

Life in a residential treatment community is a new, and sometimes confusing, experience for most clients. To minimize the stress involved in early recovery, His House has developed a structured program that exists to enable the total community to function in a constructive and supportive atmosphere. At the time of admission to His House, each Client is fully briefed concerning all rules and regulations of the residential requirements.

The His House staff provides supervision of the residential community to include individual, group and family interactions. Staff members are available on a 24-Hour basis. Each unit is under the direction of a Senior Client, then the Case Manager, and finally the Program Director. Each member of the Community is required to attend specific groups each week.

Part of the Community Meeting function shall be to introduce new members to the community, to positively reinforce responsibility in the clients, and to educate clients in areas directly related to substance abuse. In the Peer Group Meeting, the Senior Clients have the responsibility of confronting irresponsibility and giving consequences, reviewing meeting attendance, and reviewing Therapeutic Leaves. Staff members will be present at these Peer Group Meetings in an advisory capacity; however, staff reserves the right to make final decisions.

Clients will be required to attend weekly Group Therapy, Educational Groups and Individual Case Management/Counseling sessions, as scheduled. All clients will be admitted into Orientation Phase before moving into any other Phase.

TRANSPORTATION

For liability purposes, His House Recovery Residence does not provide transportation. Clients may bring their personal vehicle to His House if they provide a copy of their valid driver's license and a copy of current proof of insurance card on the vehicle to be driven while in our program; however, Clients may be subject to surrender of their vehicle as a consequence for various rule infractions. Public transportation is available to all Clients.

Clients without personal vehicles are encouraged to seek transportation from other Clients, sponsors, or appropriate contacts in the 12-Step fellowship (transportation not supervised by His House staff). Our rules require that all passengers in a private vehicle must be with all males or all females, unless prior approval for co-ed transport is obtained by the staff.

HIS HOUSE'S RELATIONSHIP WITH OTHER AGENCIES

His House Recovery Residence places a high priority on treatment. Our staff maintains constant liaison with other treatment providers and criminal justice agencies regarding Client progress via telephone consultation, on-site Client review conferences and written reports.

If His House is a secondary treatment provider to the primary outpatient program, counselor, doctor or other healthcare provider, we require that Clients follow their primary care givers treatment plan. If a Client fails to follow through with outside treatment commitments while at His House, the Client will be subject to discharge.

House Arrest Program Substance Abuse Treatment and the Criminal Justice System Combine

Many times a person finds themselves in front a judge with charges that are directly related to alcohol and/or drug use. These people are not necessarily “criminals”, but addicts. Would these people really be in trouble if they were not addicted? If they were treated for the disease of addiction, and began a program of recovery, would they be in court again? If the true intent of the criminal justice system is to rehabilitate the individual, shouldn't the individual be treated for their addiction?

But then there are critics who feel that current penalties aren't stiff enough... That the judge should throw the book at these individuals... Is there a way to address both the criminal element of drug related crimes, but still treat the disease, which perpetuates the criminal behavior?

His House is working in conjunction with companies that offer Electronic Monitoring to offer a House Arrest Program. Clients under the House Arrest Program are serving a confinement sentence, but still receive the treatment they desperately need to address their addiction issues. The Client is still required to meet all the criteria of the His House Program, work, therapy groups and 12 Step meeting attendance. Other than the time allotted for these activities, the Client is confined to their unit for monitoring. This program allows a judge to hand down a confinement sentence, yet still offer the rehabilitative therapy to decrease the chances of a reappearance of the Client in court.

Another benefit of this program is that the taxpayers no longer bear the expense of incarceration.

This program is self-paid, by the Client. The cost of this program is approximately $300.00 per month for the monitoring service, based on which monitoring company the Client wishes to use, plus the normal rate of the His House Program. Based on a 30-day month, this program would cost the Client about $28.00 per day. This is less than the daily rate of a moderate hotel room! When compared to the daily rate of an in-patient treatment facility or the cost of incarceration, the difference is significant.

The most important benefit of this program is to the clients themselves. This program allows the individual to become an acceptable, responsible, and productive member of society. It allows them to interact within society, yet still receive the support and structure so vital to those new in recovery. If the program doesn't work for an individual... then his probation or parole can be revoked... he is then incarcerated. If the program does work for an individual, then both the criminal justice system and the substance abuse treatment field have both accomplished their objectives.

Note: Clients that are placed on electronic monitoring by the criminal justice system are responsible for all costs associated with the electronic monitoring program. These costs include, but are not limited to; monthly monitoring charges and the cost of the addition of a phone line to the unit for monitoring equipment as well as monthly phone line charges.
